Dear [REDACTED]

APA supports access to evidence-based coverage of all gender-affirming procedures which would help the mental well-being of gender-diverse individuals. Additionally, a statement specific to the guidelines from APA is in effect an endorsement and APA has a process for guideline reviews that we cannot circumvent.

Hi [REDACTED]

I have never heard back from APA or Saul (cc'd again) since our June email exchange

I do know that historically, APA does not endorse outside groups' treatment guidelines

However I also believe APA has signed on to some amicus briefs in opposition to new laws opposing gender affirming care--I believe those briefs do cite WPATH previous SOC

Saul, any thoughts on this?

Dear [REDACTED]

I hope this email find you well!

I am writing to you on behalf of WPATH, as its current President.

After more than 4 years, we are ready to publish the next version of the Standards of Care version 8 (SOC-8).

Aim: The overall goal of SOC-8 is to provide clinical guidance for health care professionals to assist transgender and gender diverse (TGD) people with safe and effective pathways to achieving lasting personal comfort with their gendered selves, in order to optimize their overall physical health, psychological well-being, and self-fulfillment.

Methods: The SOC-8 is based on the best available science and expert professional consensus in transgender health. International professionals and stakeholders were selected to serve on the SOC-8 committee. Recommendation statements were developed following independent systematic literature reviews, where available, background reviews and experts' opinions. Grading of recommendations were based on available evidence supporting interventions, a discussion of risks and harms, as well as feasibility and acceptability within different contexts and country settings.

The reason I am writing to you is this:

The SOC-8 has been completed and we are going through the final (minute) edits before submission for online, Open Access publication in the International Journal of Transgender Health.

We are looking for someone (President/Executive Director/CEO, etc.) who would be willing to provide a short opinion/view regarding the SOC8 on behalf of the APA (American Psychiatric Association). We are not asking for an official endorsement (although that would be wonderful too!), but simply a few sentences pertaining to the SOC8 on behalf of the APA.

As you know "Psychiatry" has a somewhat contentious historical past when it comes to the care and treatment of sexual and gender minorities.

The SOC8 remains under embargo, and currently only ADM Rachel Levine and her Department (HHS/OASH) have access to the full document, but we will provide full access following the signing of a non-disclosure document.

Do you know anyone I could approach and who has the authority to provide such opinion on behalf of the APA?

With kind regards, and looking forward to your response,

Let us give all the support you need to work with that organization. But obviously we need you to lead the way. It is harder to mandate that system in a fragmented health care system - but certainly some systems, hospitals, states (many) will adopt that approach.

This is so devastating. I'm so fearful that this is the direction we are going to find ourselves in here in the U.S. if we aren't careful every step of the way. It is so crucial that we can secure mainstream professional associations endorsement of the SOC8 as soon as possible. I just got back from AACAP where I had spontaneous introductions with people in high level positions (including the President and CEO of AAP and President of AACAP), and really do hope there's a possibility of securing those endorsements.

Subject: Re: From the Cass review in the UK: A fascinating read

As I have stated on a number of occasions, particularly in the EC meetings, since the Bell vs Tavistock judiciary ruling, the National Health Service (NHS) has stopped providing any gender affirming medical treatment (hormones and surgery) for people under the age of 18.

Technically, adult trans health services, like ours in Nottingham, and London, etcetera, can prescribe blockers and hormones for young people aged 17 and older, but the waiting list now exceeds 2 years or more for all transgender health clinics, so in reality ALL young people do not have access to care in England. How many people are we talking about? Probably thousands.....

[REDACTED] is supposed to head a team commissioned by NHS England (which finances all secondary care) looking at all the Tavistock referrals that are waiting for an appointment. My understanding is that there are a couple of thousand referrals.....

So, the situation is more than dire for young trans people and their families in the UK.

Well I read this as very much in keeping with the principles of WPATH SOC without acknowledgement and while distribution of care regionally is a good idea - staffing and having this restricted to a research protocol - goes in the direction of Sweden. While this will insure good outcome studies - I fear that most children and adolescents will go untreated. And if they go outside of the protocol, they will not be given service forcing people into the underground.

I would say that this will have a chilling effect across the world.

Maybe I am not reading this exactly but that is my read.

Will WPATH, AAP, Endocrine Society (our few endorsers) have a response?

I don't think that they endorse any guidelines. The best people to reach out to would be orgs such as the American College of Physicians. The AMA has no power in the USA except lobbying for higher reimbursement through congress.

In the context of the previous AMA responses and official statements regarding TGD healthcare (which were quite in keeping with modern medicine and medical ethics) this is simply not good enough and I would very much like to spend a little bit of time together tomorrow to give a response to them in a way that (like AASECT did) they cannot simply ignore.....

It is time to stand up and fight for what we believe in.....

Interestingly, the response to asking colleagues around the world (and of course the world is far far more bigger than the USA) for their support for the SOC8 has been overwhelmingly positive, so..... let's stick to finding confirmation that our colleagues in the USA are in agreement with the values we profess.
